

Interdisciplinary Disability Studies (DIS) Spring 2016 Course Offerings

Now offering an Undergraduate Minor in Interdisciplinary Disability Studies ccids.umaine.edu/interedu/ids/minor/and a Graduate Certificate in Interdisciplinary Disability Studies

ccids.umaine.edu/interedu/graduate-certificate

DIS 300 Interaction of Human Diversity and Global Environments

Designed to introduce the student to disability as an element of human diversity that has a significant reciprocal relationship with the environment. (3 credits)

Course Number: 68092

Day/Time: Mondays, 4:00 – 6:50 p.m.

Instructor: Elizabeth DePoy, Ph.D.

Location: Corbett Hall, Room 220

Satisfies Cultural Diversity & International Perspective (and) Population and Environment General Education Requirement.

DIS 450 Disability: Population — Environment Diversity

Examines and analyzes disability as an interactive disjuncture between the environment, the human body and population groups. (3 Credits)

Course Number: 67940

Day/Time: Tuesdays, 4:00 – 6:50 p.m.

Instructor: Stephen F. Gilson, Ph.D.

Location: Corbett Hall, Room 220

Satisfies Population and Environment General Education Requirement.

DIS 520 Disability: Advanced Interaction of Human Diversity and Global Environments

Critically examines service and community responses to diversity and difference. (3 Credits)

Course Number: 68347

Dates: 01/19/2016 – 05/06/2016

Instructor: Elizabeth DePoy, Ph.D.

Location: Web/Online

This course also fulfills a requirement for the Graduate Certificate in Interdisciplinary Disability Studies.

For more information contact Stephen Gilson, Ph.D., Coordinator and Professor of Interdisciplinary Disability Studies; 207.581.1263 (v) or email stephen.gilson@umit.maine.edu