Volunteer Scribes Program

Want to make a difference in the life of someone living with Alzheimer’s disease? Become a Volunteer Scribe!

Volunteer Scribes interview individuals with early stage Alzheimer’s or related dementias and write their life stories, helping to preserve cherished memories for generations to come.

University of Maine students who serve as Volunteer Scribes perform an important service for those living with dementia and also gain invaluable insight into Alzheimer’s disease, especially in the early stages of this diagnosis.

Time Commitment: Volunteer Scribes can expect to commit to one 2-hour training session in September. Volunteers will then participate in six weekly 1.5 hour sessions from October to November. Each volunteer will spend 3 to 4 hours beyond session interviews writing life stories.
