

Increasing Access and Success in the
STEM Disciplines

A Model for Supporting the Transition of High School Students with Disabilities
into STEM-Related Postsecondary Education

Co-authors:

Martie Kendrick, M.Ed.
Marnie Bragdon-Morneault, M.Ed.
Janet May, M.Ed.
Alan Kurtz, M.Ed., Ph.D. Candidate

Suggested citation:

Kendrick, M., Bragdon-Morneault, M., May, J. and Kurtz, A. (2014). Increasing access and success in the STEM disciplines: A model for supporting the transition of high school students with disabilities into STEM-related postsecondary education. Orono: University of Maine Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies and Maine EPSCoR.

Increasing Access and Success in the STEM Disciplines: A Model for Supporting the Transition of High School Students with Disabilities into STEM-Related Postsecondary Education

University of Maine Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies and Maine EPSCoR
© 2014 Some rights reserved.

Materials may be copied and shared for non-commercial purposes with proper attribution. Materials may not be modified or distributed (i.e., no derivative works) for commercial purposes.

Increasing Access and Success in the STEM Disciplines: A Model for Supporting the Transition of High School Students with Disabilities into STEM-Related Postsecondary Education was co-developed by Martie Kendrick, M.Ed.; Marnie Bragdon-Morneault, M.Ed.; Janet May, M.Ed., and Alan Kurtz, M.Ed., Ph.D. Candidate; of the University of Maine Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies through a subcontract with University of Maine Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research (EPSCoR), with funding from the National Science Foundation, Award EPS-0904155.

The University of Maine does not discriminate on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, including transgender status and gender expression, national origin, citizenship status, age, disability, genetic information or veteran status in employment, education, and all other programs and activities. The following person has been designated to handle inquiries regarding non-discrimination policies: Director, Office of Equal Opportunity, 101 North Stevens Hall, (207) 581-1226.

Increasing Access and Success in the
STEM Disciplines

University of Maine
Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies
and
Maine EPSCoR
2014

Co-authors:

Martie Kendrick, M.Ed.
Marnie Bragdon-Morneault, M.Ed.
Janet May, M.Ed.
Alan Kurtz, M.Ed., Ph.D. Candidate

Acknowledgements

The University of Maine Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies, Maine's University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities; and Maine EPSCoR (Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research), wish to acknowledge the following individuals, research units, university centers and external organizations for their support of the Increasing Access and Success in the STEM Disciplines project (2011-2014) and/or their valuable contributions to this publication.

Jane Disney, Ph.D.

Staff Scientist and Director, Community Environmental Health Laboratory
Mount Desert Island Biological Laboratory

Jennifer Dunham, B.A.

Program Assistant & Diversity Specialist
University of Maine - Maine EPSCoR

Steven J. Elmer, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor, Kinesiology and Physical Education
University of Maine - College of Education and Human Development

Zachary Johnson

Senior, Foxcroft Academy – Dover-Foxcroft, ME

James P. McClymer, Ph.D.

Associate Professor, Physics
University of Maine - Department of Physics and Astronomy

Todd Nason

Undergraduate Student - Biology
University of Maine

Sheila Pendse, MPA

Program Development Associate
University of Maine – College of Engineering; Office of the Dean

Bonnie Robinson, M.Ed.

Research Associate and Specialist in Accessible Document Design
University of Maine – Center for Community Inclusion and Disability Studies

Gary Schilmoeller, Ph.D.

Associate Professor, Child Development/Family Relations
University of Maine - College of Education and Human Development

Ann Smith, M.A.

Director, Disability Support Services
University of Maine

Gregory A. Zielinski, Ph.D.

Graduate Student - Kinesiology and Physical Education
University of Maine - College of Education and Human Development

University of Maine:

Advanced Structures and Composites Center
Disability Support Services
Foster Center for Student Innovation

University of Washington

DO-IT Center

Virginia Commonwealth University

Rehabilitation Research and Training Center
Going to College: A Resource for Teens with Disabilities